SUMMARY OF SKILLS

Over 20 years analyzing U.S. defense, foreign policy, national and international security issues. I have written for print (both for general public and specialist readers), television and radio, and run Internet websites and mailing lists. I have testified before Congress and lectured to the military. Some topics I have expertise in are U.S. military force structure, defense budgeting, WMD proliferation, terrorism, homeland security, counterdrug, peace operations, intelligence policy, international arms trade, small arms proliferation, operations other than war, information warfare, private military companies, biological weapons, and general arms control issues.

PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

Writer-Editor – U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, 500 12th Street, SW, Washington, DC 20536 – May 2017 - Present

- Serve as one of four primary writer/editors tasked to respond in writing to official correspondence from Members of Congress, the White House, NGO heads, and the general public. I write and/or edit these letters on behalf of the ICE Director and Deputy Director, as well as the Secretary and Deputy Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS), and frequently involves coordination of responses with other agencies such as the State and Justice Departments, as well as other ICE agencies such as Customs and Border Protection and Citizenship and Immigration Services.
- Write and edit correspondence in response to immigration policy inquiries. Ensure these correspondences properly adhere to ICE style guidelines prior to being submitted to the ICE Director for review and signature.
- Coordinate the process for reviewing and clearing correspondences and serving as an agency liaison for multiple ICE offices.
- Serve as a point of contact between the ICE program offices and ICE Executive Secretary to resolve conflicts and confirm the accuracy of content within DHS/ICE correspondences.

But are these contractors and the costs they add to the military budget, under control?" Mar 16, 2017.

2016 –

- Here And There, David Isenberg Interview, RE: "When Eric Prince sold Blackwater he said he was getting out of military and paramilitary contracting forever. He even said this to his new partners. But it turned out he was fibbing. David Isenberg, one of the first and still among the foremost analysts of Private Military and security Companies on what the one-time Blackwater Boss has been up to. Turning crop-duster planes into potential weapons of war was just the beginning. Accusations he's been laundering South Sudanese oil money through Chinese banks might cause the end of a super-mercenary's career. The CIA reportedly suspects behind the Chinese money deal stand the Chinese intelligence service."
